Agreement on digitisation and making publications accessible

I hereby grant permission that the below work be made available digitally through Uppsala University's publication platform DiVA, Academic Archive Online (uu.diva-portal.org).

I own the copyright to:

(Title of the work and year of publication)

I have authored the work

- Alone
Together with:

(All co-authors are to sign their own copy of the document)

Are there parts of the work (e.g., images) where the copyright is owned by a third party?

- No
Yes, the following parts:

DiVA is a platform for long-term preservation of and open access for publications online through a publicly available interface. The above work may be made available electronically through the DiVA system at Uppsala University and in future systems that may replace DiVA. Read DiVA's complete publishing conditions: https://info.diva-portal.org/about-diva/open-access/publishing-conditions/

By making the work accessible, system users can download the work and to copy and distribute the work to other parties. This right does not include any parts of the work where the copyright belongs to a third party. Such parts will be excluded when creating the electronic version and may not be made available to the public.

Digital publication in DiVA requires approval from all copyright holders to the work. The work's author or authors are not entitled to financial compensation from Uppsala University Library when making the work available in DiVA.

Uppsala University Library may not reproduce copies for other purposes than noted above. The library does not own exclusive rights to the work and may not grant or transfer their rights as defined by this agreement.

The work is to be correctly reproduced and, in accordance with section 28 of the Copyright Act, may not be changed other than purely technical changes required for the specified use or corrections of obvious typographical errors.
